

BE RESPONSIBLE

It is fun to play with your toys, but you may not always feel happy about having to clean up afterwards. Sometimes tidying up after yourself can seem like a lot of work. It does take time and effort, but there are good reasons for it, too. For example, when you put your toys and activities away where they belong, they are less likely to get damaged or lost.

No one likes to lose a special toy, find that toy with an ugly mar, or misplace a piece from a game or toy. So the best way to prevent that is to take proper care of your toys and activities by putting them away where they belong when you are done with them.

The next time you are asked to tidy up your toys, remind yourself that this is a way you can take good care of your toys so that you can enjoy them for a long time. It also shows those who have given you the toys that you are a good caretaker of your things, and it makes them happy to see you being responsible.
